

I am a long-term amateur radio operator, WB6RRU. I have extensive experience with low power communications across most of the amateur shortwave bands. From the frequencies, power levels, and potential size of the emitting conductors, the potential for unintentional interference is immense. You are not proceeding with sufficient caution.